The Cork Historical and Archaeological Society (IE-148166, incorporated 1989) was founded in 1891, for the collection, preservation and diffusion of all available information regarding the past of the City and County of Cork, and South of Ireland generally. This archive of all content of JCHAS (from 1892 up to ten years preceding current publication) continues the original aims of the founders in 1891. For more information visit www.corkhist.ie.

List of Books, Pamphlets, etc., Printed at Cork in the 17th and 18th Centuries.

By E. R. McC. DIX,

PART IX.—FINAL LIST.

THIS final instalment contains a full collation of certain items of Cork printing only briefly mentioned in the preceding parts of this List, in consequence of there being no copy available for reference at the time, but which have since been found and examined. In some instances additional references to other copies merely are given. It is desirable—necessary in fact—to place such references on record as they undoubtedly widen the sphere of utility of the list. There may be persons interested in a particular book or pamphlet living at a distance from such libraries as those of Dublin, Cork, or Belfast, who may be glad to learn of the existence of a copy of it in some English or private library. I have also the pleasure of adding fourteen entirely new titles, which have come under my notice within the last few months. Lastly, there will be found, briefly stated, what Cork newspapers are now preserved in Trinity College Library and the National Library, Dublin.

As sources of information, our provincial newspapers are daily becoming more realized and valued; but unfortunately so great has been the neglect to file copies of the local newspapers, and so little value has been attached to them in the past, that it is often difficult, if not impossible, to come across even a single number of some of these papers, and almost hopeless to find complete sets of any. Unless strong and immediate efforts be made to remedy this neglect by collecting all available copies or volumes into our libraries here, it will soon be too late to do so. It is, however, a pleasure to know that the National Library Trustees and the librarian (Mr. Lyster) are now steadily endeavouring to make the acquisition of such provincial newspapers, as well as those of the Metropolis, a leading feature of their important library; and it is to be hoped that by donations as well as by purchase they will, as each year goes by, add materially to their number.

I desire, in conclusion, once more to sincerely thank all who kindly helped me in compiling this List, and more particularly Mr. James Coleman, whose original compilation formed the foundation of it, and Mr. James Buckley who added much to it and helped me in other ways.

CORRECTIONS, ADDITIONAL REFERENCES, Etc.

Part I.

1650. "A Letter from the Lord General Cromwell," etc. [Advocates' Library, Edinburgh.]

Part II.

1723. "The Cork News Letter." (The printer, according to Tuckey, was George Bennett).

1725. "Les Veritez," etc. [Canon R. Travers Smith, Dublin.]

1735. "Botanalogia," etc. [British Museum; Royal Irish Academy; Count Plunkett; Robert Day.]

1737. "Remarks," etc., by "Alexander the Coppersmith." (I have seen it stated that this author was a Mr. W. Boles. Can anyone confirm this?)

1743. "Poems," by Weekes. (There is a second copy amongst the Halliday "Books" in the Royal Irish Academy. It has a list of the subscribers.)

1745. "Seasonable Advice to Protestants, Containing Some Means of Reviving and Strengthening the Protestant Interest Where it has failed or declined."

(George Harrison). 4to., 42 pp. 2nd Edition. With many alterations and Additions. Folds in twos. [Dr. Williams' Library, Gordon Square, London; E. R. McC. Dix.]

Part III.

[1756]. "An Impartial Representation," etc. Richard Rolt. (The correct collation of Vols 1 to 3 is as follows—Vol. 1, xx and 320 pp.; Vol 2, x and 442 pp.; Vol. 3, xii. and 310 pp. I have copies of these volumes. Of Vol. 4, which seems to be by far the rarest, I have only seen an imperfect copy in the possession of Mr. N. Massey.)

1756. "The Rational Amusement," etc. The correct collation is as follows—"The Rational Amusement, Comprehending A Collection of Letters on a Great Variety of Subjects, Serious, Entertaining, Moral, Diverting and Instructive." (P. and G. Bagnell). 12mo., 11 leaves and 348 pp. [E. R. McC. Dix.]

1758. "A Trip to the Jubilee," etc. [British Museum.]

1762. "Some Short Historical Anecdotes," etc. Stackpole. [British Museum; E. R. McC. Dix.]

1764. "The Cork Chronicle," etc. (There is a copy of No. 1, Vol IX. (1772, Jany. 2nd) in T.C.D. Library. The printer of it was "John" Busteed of Flacks Lane, opposite St. Peter's Church. It had 4 pp. of 4 columns each.)

1766. "The History of the General Revolution in Ireland," etc. [Royal Irish Academy; Count Plunkett.]

1766. "The Vicar of Wakefield." (I have now acquired a copy of this very rare Edition. The title page of Volume I. bears a London imprint, but the title page of Vol. II. a Cork printer's name, Eugene Swiney. Probably Swiney had a copy of the London Edition before him and either through haste or design left the London imprint on the front or title page.)

1767. "A Parallel between the Pretended Plot," etc. [National Library, 2 copies among Pamphlets, Vols. 93 and 126.]

1768. "State of the Protestants in Ireland," etc. (The Printers were Phineas Bagnell and Co., and there are xxvii. preliminary pages. I have now acquired a copy of this work; and there is one in the Library of Canon R. T. Smith.)

1768. "Poems" by Gray. [E. R. McC. Dix.]

1769. "The Works of the late Revd. Geo. Russell," etc. [Vol. I. contains xxx. and 406 pp. and 1 leaf (Advertisement). Vol. II. contains 3 leaves and 402 pp. and 3 leaves (Advertisements).]

1772. "The Contraction of Lily's Syntaxis." (Of these two Editions I have now copies. Each has a separate title page; but the pagination and signatures are continuous. The author is stated to be "N. Young.")

1773. "A Full and True Account of the Murder of Samuel Powell," etc. (There is a copy of this Broadside in the Library of the Earl of Crawford and Balcarres. It is a single folio sheet, and was printed by "S. Macky on the Flags, near the North Gate.")

1774. "Considerations," etc. [E. R. McC. Dix.]

1774. "Poems" by J. Connolly. [E. R. McC. Dix.]

1774. "Observations," etc. [E. R. McC. Dix.]

Part IV.

1778. "Prospect of Happiness." By a Gentleman of Cambridge. (Oy. was this the Revd. G. S. Cotter?)

1778. "Poems," by De la Cour. (This is a 12mo., not 8vo.)

1778. "The Works of Miss Hannah More," etc. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1779. "An Address to the Common People," etc. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1779. "The Weekly Repository." (Mr. Robert Day possesses Nos. 1 to 12, 1st February to 19th April, of this rare work.)
 1780. "Miscellaneous Observations," etc. Priestly. [Marsh's Library, Dublin.]
 [1782]. "Thoughts on the Present State of the College," etc. [Royal Irish Academy.]
 1787. "The O'Leariad." (The following is the correct collation—"The O'Leariad. Translated into English Verse and Illustrated, with Notes." (Robert Dobbyn). 12mo., 40 pp. Folds in eights.) [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1789. "A List of the Freemen," etc. [Robert Day.]
 1790. The Revd. Arthur O'Leary's "Caution to the Common People of Ireland" against Perjury in the Ensuing General Election. (William Flynn). 12mo., 24 pp. (This is the correct title, etc.; a copy of this work is now in my possession).

Part V.

1791. "The Life and Prophecies," etc. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1791. "An Account of the Captivity," etc. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1791. "A Caution to Gentlemen," etc. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1791. "Pharmacopia," etc. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1791. "The Life of James Albert, a Black." [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1792. "Edwards' Cork Remembrancer." (This is the correct year, not 1791.)
 1792. "Some Thoughts," etc. (The full title is—"Some Thoughts on the present Politics of Ireland in a letter to Robert Simms.")
 [1793-4]. "The Cork Gazette." (Some numbers are now to be found in the National Library; see below).
 1793. "Funeral Sermon," etc. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1794. "A Poetical Miscellany." Edward Holland (of Kanturk). (J. O'Connor). 8vo., xii. and 116 pp. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 [1794]. Poems, etc. Hillary. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1795. "Concern of Death" should be "The Cavern of Death." It is a 12mo. [E. R. McC. Dix.]
 1795. "The Mardyke," etc. "William" O'Connor. 12mo. 24 pp. [Robert Day; E. R. McC. Dix.]

Part VI.

P.S.—It is to be regretted that so few copies of those old Cork papers are to be found in Dublin. There are probably some in private hands which may some day become available to the public; but in the meantime it would be well that some particulars be published, in this “Journal” especially, as to what copies or volumes of them now exist in any of the Cork Libraries, or in the hands of private collectors in or about Cork or elsewhere.

Dr. Caulfield's Contributions to the “Gentleman's Magazine.”

To the number of this magazine for February, 1863, Dr. Caulfield contributed “Some Early Charters Relating to Kinsale,” which he stated were the only series in existence concerning Kinsale, except the papers of the Browne family, which embrace the Charter of Lord Barry, the feudal superior of Kinalea, from which he had made copious extracts. He adds, that he had ascertained that the Enrolments in Chancery are quite destitute of information relative to Kinsale. Dr. Caulfield had at this time probably little idea of bringing out his “Council Book of the Corporation of Kinsale,” which he published in 1879. The twenty-one items in the above contribution are all in Latin. In a footnote he refers to Tracton Abbey, respecting which he draws on Dr. Smith's “History of Cork.” The Cogans, he adds, obtained after the Conquest a grant of the entire barony of Kinalea and Kericcurrihy, in which Tracton Abbey (now entirely demolished) was situated. In old MSS. this district is called Longa Gowganig, which signifies Cogan's ship. Now united into one, these baronies formerly comprehended the barony of Imokilly, in which the Carews settled after the English Conquest.
